Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English. Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Statement for Management: November 1992 Big Hole National Battlefield is astride a western tributary valley of the Big Hole Basin. The vegetation varies, from stands of second-growth lodgepole pine on the slopes of Battle Mountain (on the north) to willow swamps and grasslands on the banks of the meandering North Fork of the Big Hole River, which courses the middle of the valley. Battle Mountain forms the northwest side of the valley, while Ruby Bench forms the southeast side. Battle Mountain exposes the southeast face and is covered with a mixed lodgepole-pine forest; however, the lower slope has a treeless, grassy, open area of approximately 95 acres. Ruby Bench is a tableland formation, mostly of glacial alluvial deposits, covered by sagebrush and grass. Trail Creek and Ruby Creek cross the west boundary of the park and quickly join to form the North Fork of the Big Hole River, which leaves the battlefield to the northeast. The topography of the battlefield is quite varied within the small area. The landforms of today are shaped much as they were at the time of the battle, with the exception of the irrigation ditches. Prior to 1877, regional Indians, including the Nez Perce, used the area as a sort of outdoor supermarket for their needs. Lodgepoles were plentiful, fishing potential was good, and large game animals were abundant. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
